GCollege411 Reaches One Millionth Account Milestone

ATLANTA – GCollege411, a free and powerful online resource for Georgians pursuing higher education, announced that it has hit the astounding milestone of one million individual “My411” account creations since its inception in 2005. The “My411” account is just one of many services offered on the GCollege411 website, which is administered by the Georgia Student Finance Commission and its partners. The site is loaded with important and valuable information on how students and parents can plan, apply and pay for an education beyond high school.

With over 8.6 million site visits, GCollege411 is known as the official source for all information regarding state scholarships, including HOPE, as well as grants, loans and other financial services. “Reaching one million ‘My411’ accounts is undoubtedly a huge achievement after launching the website three years ago. It is a great indicator that the website has been well received by Georgians — and a great tool for students and their parents in choosing, applying to and paying for college. This process can be very intimidating and GCollege411 makes it far easier,” said Tim Connell, president of the Georgia Student Finance Commission.

Students with personal “My411” accounts have the ability to keep a record of their high school grades, test scores, and activities; track their progress toward meeting specific college entrance requirements; apply to 106 colleges and universities in Georgia; submit financial aid applications online; prepare for and take sample tests such as the SAT and ACT; and research and apply for state and national scholarship and grant programs.
