Prince Avenue Christian School has been selected as the GCollege411 School of the Month for February 2010. The school was nominated by Lisa Ricketts, Director of Academic Counseling. Lisa shares the following about their use of GCollege411.

“Since its creation our school has been a big fan of GCollege411! We always do a presentation and go through the site at our annual College Planning Night in August and promote it as the ‘One stop shopping’ place for finding out about what to do after high school. Everything from career assessments, searching for colleges, applying to colleges, to how to pay for college all can be found at this one site. Another big plus that we promote to parents is no longer do they have to search for different websites for each college of financial aid service because they can get to everything through 411. Lastly, one more neat way we have used GCollege411 is with our dual enrollment students. Instead of each student having to go home and sign up for the Accel Program, we simply had the dual enrollment class meet in the computer lab and had all of them create an account with GCollege411 and fill out the Accel application through the site. It saved everyone involved much needed time and parents were thrilled that this avenue was used.”

Prince Avenue Christian School will receive a plaque celebrating their recognition as GCollege411 School of the Month.
